If you make the logo too deep in height, it pushes everything down below it, such as the scratch-here pad, prize image, and claim prize. A logo that may be too deep in height may push the claim prize button too low and out of view for your players and cause confusion and game abandonment.

Background Image: First, NO high-res images are allowed; they may cause the campaign not to work correctly. Keep the file size below 200k. Vectors with abstract imagery work best because the background images are NOT RESPONSIVE and stretch in and out depending on the monitor size. A 1920 x 1000-pixels image is a good starting point; and view it on both mobile and desktop monitors and make any size adjustments as needed. If you must have a Responsive Background Image – Follow these steps \(opens in a new page\).

Mobile-Only Background Image Specs: If you have the type of game that players will only be on mobile phones to play and want a photo to display realistically, you can try a background image that is 1080 x 1920 pixels.
